Information on Microsoft Publisher”

Cloud computing

In October 2026, Microsoft Publisher will reach its end of life. After that time, it will no longer be included in Microsoft 365 Cloud computing. Microsoft 365 subscribers will no longer be able to open or edit Publisher files in Publisher on the cloud. Until then, support for Publisher will continue and users can expect the same experience as today. If you use Office 365 online Publisher will not work after October.

Standalone Versions:

Perpetual/standalone versions of Publisher in Microsoft Office Suites (which contain Publisher) on your computer will still work such as Office 2013, 2016 etc. They will no longer receive security updates, bug fixes, or technical support. This will hardly effect Publisher if it is part of an office program on your computer.

If you had an office program with Publisher on a previous computer then it will need to be uploaded to the new computer as a stand alone office suite. If you have it on a disc you will need to use a disc drive connected to the new computer to upload the program to the new computer.

Alternatively

- When you bought the new computer was the original office program transferred with all your files to the new computer from the old one?
- You can copy and paste all the files from of the office program computer on your old computer to the new computer via a flash drive.
- You can buy an older office suite cheaply (get a Pro version) from places such as “Trade Me” and download the office files onto the new computer. You will also receive a one-use code to activate the files. I have done this on my laptop. Microsoft office is the world standard.
- Then you can always use Publisher and you can share your articles by converting them to PDF files.

I use this Office program for my laptop. Here it is on Trade Me.
